

Dr. Elise Lopez

Dr. Lopez is the director of the Consortium on Gender-Based Violence and an Assistant Professor of Public Health at The University of Arizona. She holds degrees in public policy and management, criminal justice administration, and public health. She has worked in public health research and practice since 2004, specializing in restorative justice, adolescent health, substance abuse, trauma, and prevention of and response to sexual violence. Dr. Lopez has published widely on restorative justice for sexual misconduct on college campuses.