

Kate Chisholm, DrPH Candidate, MPH, MA

Kate is in her final year as a doctoral student in Public Health at the University of Arizona with an advanced minor in Journalism. Her research focuses on qualitative and mixed-methods approaches on topics of interpersonal violence, sexual violence, and women and children's issues in Latin America and the United States. She is passionate about sexual violence prevention, research, policy reform, and restorative justice with interest in advocacy through writing and journalism.